

The Cross-Eyed King

Once
upon a time
there
lived a cross-
eyed
king.

He was a proud king and he wanted a handsome painting made of himself. He asked the best artist in his kingdom to make a portrait.

As the king was cross-eyed the young artist did not know how to make his king look handsome. So he went to his father who was a very good artist himself.

His father told him,
"Everybody looks good one way or the other. Make a portrait of your king holding a bow and arrow then show him take aim.

As one eye of his will be closed no one will notice that he is cross-eyed."

The artist
did exactly
that and he made a wonderful
picture
of the king.

Very often we only look at the bad things in people.

We must look for the good things.